During the early part of the week the college women initiated 18 new members. As the rites of initiation are known to those who belong only, very little can be learned of what took place. For several days, groups of school girls were seen rushing through the hals of the building to and from the college women's room, but the door was always quickly closed. On Monday, the girls were taken to the third floor of the library building, blindfolded, and then asked to find their way to the club room on the ground floor below. At the conclusion of all this excitement, one afternoon, the 18 young ladies filed out of their room, each wearing a wide circle of red and black link around her left eye, and walking in old shoes. They were now full fledged members of the College Women's club. It is said that among the toilet articles used were sugar, water, link, sulphur, hydrogen sulphide, fly paper and flour.

At a principal's meeting held Wednes. day afternoon, the question of promo-tions was discussed. Supt. Christensen tions was discussed. Supt. Christensen urged upon the principals the necessity of keeping up the high standard of the schools by promoting those only who merited it. It was advised to secure more oral work in the grades, keeping in view the development of expression. For this purpose, sight-reading, at least once per week, was recommended. A list of the names of especially good books was presented from which the principals might draw, the books to be read by the pupils during the year. Miss Arnold's "How to Teach Reading" was favored as a textbook for teachers. Supt.
